North Sea

2 Jibeiyu

Jibeiyu is the largest islet in North Sea.

Because of the well-developed shallow plains and nearly one hundred stone weirs, it has won its reputation as "Home for Stone

Weirs". Xikanshan, a hill located in the southwest of the islet, offers a wonderful view for visitors. On the hill, you can feast

your eyes on Jibei Sand Beach Beak(Tail)

and survey the islets in North Sea.

In Penghu, the ecology, the atmosphere of fishing villages and water activities on the islets in North Sea are the most popular to visitors. The clean immense blue seashores are suitable for various water activities, which usually make tourists enjoy themselves and reluctant to leave. The islets in North Sea include Jibeiyu, Xianjiaoyu, Tiezhenyu, Gupoyu, and Mudouyu. Jibeiyu has an impressive grand sight of "Sand Beach Tail", which is composed of fragments of corals and shells. Xianjiaoyu has numerous submerged reefs and abundant natural resources. Tiezhenyu is suitable for bird watching. In winter, wild laver grows all over Gupoyu. Mudouyu, the northernmost islet in Penghu, has the highest cast iron lighthouse in Far East.

East Sea

The isles in East Sea include the following inhabited ones: Jishanyu, Dinggoyu, and Xiaobaishayu. These isles have a great diversity of geological wonders and are thus classified as basalt conservancy districts. They are also the best place for bird watching. Besides, located on the southwest of Niaoyu, Pengpeng Beach has been a hot spot for water activities. Yuangbeiyu has plenty of unique geological spectacles.

📛 Transportation from Magong to East Sea Ship Schedules

Since Pengpeng Beach is an uninhabited islet, there is no regular schedule for ships running there. In summer package deals offered by cruiser owners in East Sea carry passengers there to play in the water. The passage takes about 15 minutes after starting from the port of Qitou or Chikan in Baisha Township. Those who have engaged in such tourism business include Inhai Speedboat, Juhang Entertainment, Yuanbeihang Sea Fishing Area, Xinlaifa Recreational Fishing, etc.

3 Mandarin Ducks Grotto

Mandarin Ducks Grotto is a valley which runs east and west. The valley and Maanshan, a saddle-like hill, face each other across the sea. Because of the terrain, the grotto was made a hidden place. During the Japanese Occupation, it became a secret naval base of suicide boats. Now most of the grottos where the boats were once hidden have collapsed. However, some relics are still faintly visible.

4 Tiantaishan

Tiantaishan is the highest hill on Wanganyu. The sea area nearby is the source of famous aragonite. The hill is also the best place to survey Wanganyu and Huayu. Under the sea cliffs on its west side, there are magnificent basalt landforms. The interlaced basalt sheets have formed beautiful "Stone Flowers" On the west side the wave-cut caves are another scenic wonder at the seashore.

5 Huazhai Ancient Residences

Huazhai Ancient Residences have remained for about three hundred years. It is one of those which are better-preserved. Among the residences, the most conspicuous one is the Zengs'residence. Its windows were made in the shape of a book and they also look like the trademark of Microsoft. Besides, the window lattices were built by laying red bricks to form the Chinese character "Zeng".

6 Wangankou Beach

The curved bay which extends for nearly one kilometer is the paradise for native kids and visitors to play in the water. With clear sea water and golden sand, the beautiful beach and nights are like poets or lovers. Because the color of the sea water varies within a day, the beach is nicknamed "Mixology Beach"

7 Jiangjunaoyu

In early years the local residents had made a fortune by gathering corals, and the isle hence became wealthy and flourishing Arrays of houses piled against one another along the streets near the fishing port. Owing to the atmosphere of a port city, the islet was also praised as "Small Hong Kong".
